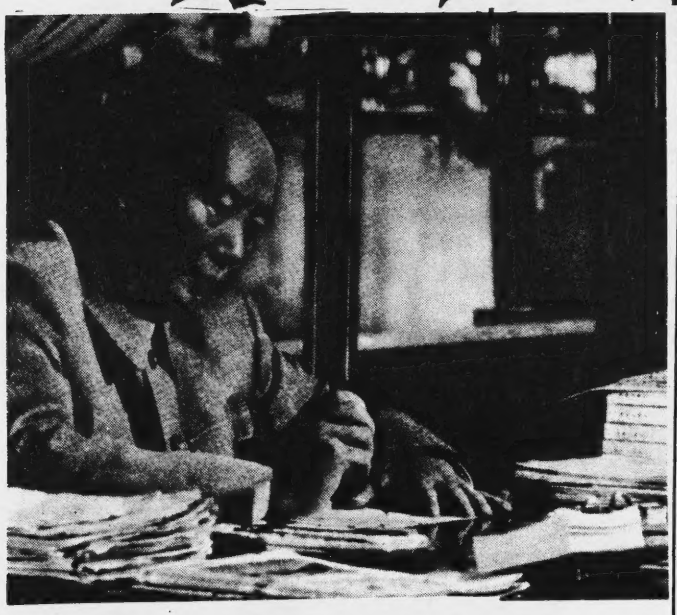
DEAR HUNDRED FLOWERS



Dear Hundred Flowers,

Last week's Hundred Flowers printed the list of recent federal indictments for draft violation. This letter is just to add some information. There were 132 draft indictments out of a total of 180 indictments. Both figures were record totals. The percentage of draft cases was 73%, the highest ever, as well as being the highest percentage in the country. In fact, this federal district--Minnesota--had the highest percentage when "only" 50% of the indictments were for the draft. Earlier this year there have been a total of 76 draft indictments out of how many I don't know. However, a year ago--Sept. 1970--out of a total of 101 indictments, 55 were for draft violations, 3 for the Minnesota 8 and 2 for war tax resistance--60% for war resistance. Previous to that set of indictments, the number of draft cases had been much smaller but had been running at about 50% of the total for over a year.

The local federal district attorney's office has been able to increase the number of prosecutions because of the addition of two new prosecuters a few months ago, including a professor in the Criminal Justice Studies Dept. (I understand that for Northern California, 10 new prosecutors had to be added to try to catch up with the draft cases.) But even with the increased prosecutions, they are only able to deal with a small percentage of those who are in violation of Selective Service. Every day, men fail to report for induction or report in order to refuse. And with the elimination of the student deferment and growing awareness of the draft among people in high schools, more and more men are just going to never bother registering for the draft at all. The draft is falling apart because more and more guys are taking control of their own lives. Far out.

Dear Staff,

I have bought 'Hundred Flowers' several times in the past because I think your community news is well done and helpful.

The rest of the material would improve if the "revolutionary" lingo (the pigs vs. the people, etc.) were left out--revolution is hard work, not a fun game with the good guys against the bad guys.

A more mature attitude might be achieved if you would realize that there is a gray area; life isn't divided into black and white, people are not divided into "the pigs" and "the people". Labeling people is easy, requires no thinking, but people seldom fit into stereotypes.

Certainly the principle of oppression must be fought; those who oppress us must no longer be allowed to do so, but when you holler "Kill the pigs"--count me out. Which brings me around to the subject of this letter, namely the enclosed page from your newspaper (referring to the centerfold of a cop with a dart board over his face).

What the hell is that??? I am a radical, but I have a few brains in my skull. Do not insult my intelligence.

True change will be brought about by love, strength and hard work--count you out. If you want to play games, please choose something less important to have fun with.

Think about these things. With a more mature outlook and less irresponsibility, with more thought and less lingo, Hundred Flowers could be a worthwhile paper.

J.K.

Dear Hundred Flowers,

Probably through oversight, though possibly ignorance, your enlightening article on the record "business" neglected to mention or make note of the recently-opened Uptown Book and Record Shop, 3027 Hennepin Ave, where record prices are substantially lower than all those quoted for area shops. We are by no means alone in our effort. I believe Country Comforts and North Country Music, to name but two, also sell records for less than the "head store" prices quoted. It will never be necessary, therefore, to pay more than $2.99 for $4.98 list, or $3.65 for $5.98 list records, in the metropolitan area again.

Thank you,
Charles Orr

Dear Hundred Flowers,

Your article on bio-rythms and fertility cycles, though doubtless well-intended, lacks a couple of points of crucial info.

First and heaviest: Dr. Jonas' work is not a method of birth prevention. By birth control, he means the highest probability of a full-term healthy birth.

Thus, women who find it difficult to conceive are greatly aided by this discovery. To women who wish to avoid pregnancy it's not so good. Dr. Jonas proved that the greatest likelihood of conception coincided with the lunar cycles as outlined in your article, irregardless of menstrual cycle. Thus, it is then proved that a woman can conceive at any time. She is most likely to conceive when her lunar cycle indicates, but that's all.

His explanation goes to the effect that though ovulating normally occurs on this pattern, a healthy ovum may be released due to hormonal changes (like going off the pill) or by confusion in a women's body perception of time. For instance, it is widely accepted that urban women, whose lives are geared to artificial time (electric lights, etc.) are more inclined to menstrual irregularity than their rural cousins. (Women have been successfully treated for this problem by adjusting the hours that they leave their lights on.)

So, you see, it's a great boon to the woman wishing to insure as much as possible a healthy conception and "pick" the sex of the child. For women with the opposite intent, it's just the same old roulette game. Better odds, but the same game.

Also, Dr. Jonas' preliminary research indicates that women born under a full-moon have a greater likelihood of passing genetic defects to their feamle children conceived under the same configuration. Males apparently are not directly affected, though the daughters male children may "collect" those genetic defects and evince them where as she might not (in the same manner of Queen Victoria's hemophilia quirk).

So, at least until more is established, it would be wise for women born at full moon to avoid full moon in a feminine sign with special care (regardless of where she is in her menstrual cycle). Masculine and feminine signs alternate, Aries masculine, Taurus feminine, Gemini masculine, etc.).

As far as picking the sex of a child goes, the closer to the middle of the sign, the greater the surety of gender.

Timing is all.

SPEAKING OUT BEHIND THE PRISON GATES

We have had several recent additions to our number here, including draft resisters, and what the establishement likes to term "Radical Activists".

We felt that it would be appropriate to let our brothers and sisters on the outside know what new arrivals run into as soon as they reach this institution.

For the most part, new brothers who have been zapped by Amerikan Justice, have never been in an institution before in their lives, and they come in here strong in the knowledge that what they have done is morally correct, and what Amerika has done to them is morally wrong. But this doesn't prepare them for the actual dehumanization process these institutions are designed to perpetrate.

As the brother enters the institution, the first thing that happens to him, is that he is stripped completely of any outward sign that he is a unique human entity. His clothes are taken from him, and he is informed that he can either donate them to the institution, or have them destroyed. If the brother has his shit together enough at this time, he will ask if he can have them sent home, which the institution is obligated to do, but won't admit unless asked.

If the brother has long hair, or a beard or mustache, he is then made to get a hair cut, and shave. For shaving they issue him "Government blades" which are duller when new than the rusty blades found in the disposal section of a Gillette blade dispenser.

After this the brother is stripped completely naked, and subjected to being sprayed with an insecticide called cuprex. He is then made to stand and let this chemical compound (it has a kerosene base) soak into his skin, which causes an intolerable burning around his genitals.

Finally, after what seems to be an hour of hopping from one foot to the other in agony, he is allowed to take a shower to wash this noxious substance off. But water and soap does not cut through kerosene very well. Consequently even after the shower the burning caused by the cuprex persists.

The brother is then dressed in a suit of coveralls, which automatically show him to be a new arrival to the entire population of the insttution, as every one else is dressed in Khaki pants, and shirts. But before he is allowed to even get inside the joint, he first has to allow them to take four seperate sets of "fingerprints", and thirty-six pictures of a frontal view, and thirty six more of a side view. He is then issued a razor a pack of government blades, can of toothpowder, comb, bar of shaving soap, and a toothbrush. All of which he must carry to where he is going in a little paper bag. One more instance of the establishment making sure he comes under the eye of every inmate already in the institution as a "Newcomer". He is then given a bedroll, and ushered into a dormitory and from there allowed to fend for himself as best he can. He is given no general instructions, or list of rules, or any guideline whatsoever to be followed while he's in the institution until a few days after arrival. The only information he can get is from other inmates, and unless he is fortunate enough to know already, or to meet immediately some other brother who is already in the institution, this information is going to be on the order of the mechanic who sent the novice to obtain a "Sky hook".

Actually though, the procedure followed here, is this: nothing (with the exception of leaving, striking a pig, or destroying something) is illegal until some pig decides to take exception to it. And like this is a very strange thing too, in that the same pig before and after the incident won't say anything about exactly the same thing.

An example of this are things which happened to just prior to Twin Cities "Connections" organized demonstration here on Oct. 2. The brothers here have a group which meets on Saturday nights for the sole purpose of listening to the music of our culture, this meeting has been held for over a year in a classroom connected to the Chapel complex here, and our records had been stored in one of the Chaplain's clerk's office for the same length of time. But on this day, I was told that our records could no longer be stored there, and that we had to find somewhere else to store them in a relatively short span of time. And since then, an active campaign has been in force to have our group ousted from the Chapel entirely, which in effect will end the existence of our group.

On the same day I was called in fron of my "liason officer" and berated because I had had too intimate contact with my wife on my latest visit. This "too intimate contact" consisted of holding hands and looking into each others eyes, and allowing the good vibes to flow between us. So, in effect, it wasn't the actual physical contact they objected to, although they had to couch their complaint in those terms; as how they could justify saying; "By looks and expressions, they exhibited to a great depth love for each other". My wife and I on subsequent visits, have not changed our conduct in the least, but the same pig has not seen fit to complain again.

Then, after the completion of a visit, a brother is submitted to the most demeaning violation of his physical body imaginable, in the guise of a "shakedown". The procedure starts with a complete stripping off of all his clothes, then he is required to face the pig, open his mouth and let the pig examine the interior, run his fingers through his hair, lift his arms, and allow the pig to examine his armpits, lift his balls, and let the pig look them over, spread the cheek of his ass, and allow the pig to inspect that also;finally, he lifts both of his feet in succession.

The main thing here, is that as loosely as this institution is run, it isn't necessary for a man to bring anything which could be considered "contraband" through the "shakedown" since there are innumerable ways which are much easier.

The pig fully realizes this, so the reason for this dehumanizing shakeown is only to disperse the good mood induced by the visit as soon as possible and slam you back into the pig's concept of acceptable reality.

This concept is epitomized by the housing provided the inmates. It consists of a hospital type dormatory (dorms house from 20-65 men each, depending on size and whether it is an "honor" visit) with double bunkbeds on one side, singles on the other. On the bunkbed side, two men are expected ing ablutions, and generally live in an area three feet wide, by six and one half feet long. The dormitory itself, is inadequately ventilated, and due to number of men caged in this area, is constantly filled with smoke, noise, and stale air which leads to all kinds of respiratory ailments.

Then also, they do their utmost to impose upon each individual the impression that he is a herd animal. They lock you in and out of every room and facility the institution offers. Forcing you to que up like cattle waiting to get into the barn at times the pigs feel are right for us to enter these facilities.

FRANKLIN CO OP TAKES OFF

The Franklin area people are looking forward to their co-op opening. Three weeks ago a note was pinned up at North Country and Whole Foods requesting that all those interested in a Franklin Co-op meet at the Franklin Public Library. Fifty people attended. The first discussion dealt with location, and the best buildings were owned by a slum landlord, a man named Phillister. Tenants of his strongly urged that we have no dealings with him. Immediately we understood his reputation; we dropped his property as a possibility.

Then it was asked in what way this would be a community store. Would we sell Cheerios, styrofoam bread, etc.? Another immediate understanding was reached. We will be a co-operative based on co-operation. Co-operation with our needs, each other, nature. Only then does the co-op become the political expression of the people.

Next, three elderly people were asked their opinion. They all smiled and said it was what the older community also needed. Our common needs served to unite all of us.

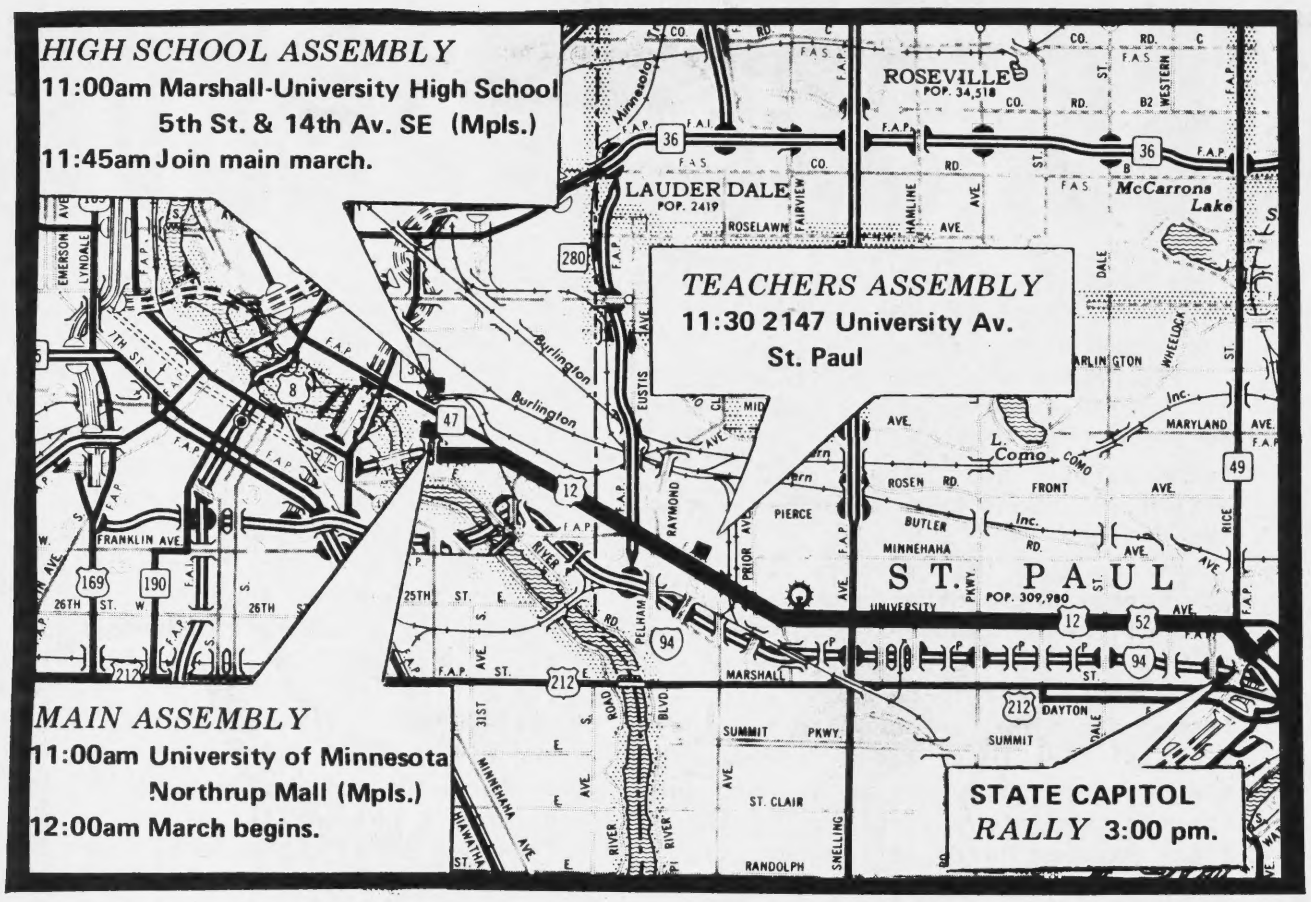
Our last meeting was Tuesday night. Then we deicded, as a group, to look at a building on 26th and Bloomington South. (Bring friends, food, yourself, at 7 P.M., Friday, Nov. 5th.) This place is close enough to the Franklin area, near the Senior Citizens' Towers, large enough, and has a congenial landlord who actually generates good vibes ("It looks like your project will take a lot of co-operation and a lot of love.")

But our job is made easier because of the hard work and foresight involved in the formation of North Country Co-op and Whole Foods Co-op. Those who organized these co-ops have been very helpful in advising us Franklin area people--smoothing over the legal and money hassles. So, the frontiers of our direction broaden. With the precendents established and co-operativeness understood, where do we go from here?

As a first step, it struck us all as absurd to pay rent to the landlords forever. We saw much money dissipated to be collected by a few for investment. We saw our money going for stock in Honeywell, AT&T, the Republican Party. Then, after we pay rent forever, what do we have? Enough receipts to paper our landlord-neglected walls, ceilings and floors. The concensus was that no one felt that this was a desirable end. The other alternative: Instead of paying rent, pay off the mortgage. The end: The community owns the property and the building, the material and the go goods. The building we are looking at is for sale.

The Franklin area people have voted on going ahead with purchase. A step forward. One step. But many steps are needed. The next obvious one: acquiring money. Many community events are planned to raise money: a concert-bake sale-feast might; sales of donated articles and straight money donations; movies.

Movies. A reality: the first movies will be shown at Murphy Hall Auditorium, on the tenth of November (Wednesday) and eleventh (Thursday) of November. The Grove Press has offered us "Some Won't Go" (concerns the draft problem) and "End of a Revolution" at a low rental price. They will be shown as a double feature at 7:30 and 9:00 P.M. The latter movie is especially pertinent to our istuation. Our "revolution" is ended if we stop at a rented co-op--or an owned co-op. We must deal with property taxes, etc.



People's March

THOUSANDS TO CONVERGE ON TWIN CITIES NOV. 6 IN ANTIWAR MARCH; FARMERS, UNIONS, STUDENTS TO MARCH ON STATE CAPITOL TO DEMAND IMMEDIATE END TO WAR; ONE MILLION PERSONS EXPECTED TO MARCH NATIONALLY AGAINST THE WAR.

Thousands of demonstrators from across the state are expected to descend on the Twin Cities Saturday for the November 6 march on the state capitol to demand immediate withdrawal from Southeast Asia.

The demonstration will be led by a contingent of Iowa farmers from the Iowa Farmers Association.

Sponsor of the demonstration is the Minnesota Peace Action Coalition. The metropolitan demonstration is one of 17 organized in major cities across the United States for Saturday.

Buses and automobile caravans from schools and cities throughout Minnesota were expected to begin arriving in the early morning hours on Saturday.

Assembly point is Northrup Mall at the University of Minnesota campus.

The march will push off at noon, moving along University Avenue for the 3 P.M. rally at the capitol in St. Paul.

"As many as a million persons are expected to participate nationally," said Dave Riehle, coordinator of the Minnesota Peace Action Coalition.

Riehle reported that all permits for the march and rally had been obtained. The demonstration, he said, will be a peaceful, legal gathering.

The Minnesota coalition is the state affiliate of the National Peace Action Coalition, the umbrella antiwar organization which sponsored the peaceful march on April 24 in Washington D.C.

Riehle said that "president Nixon is going to take a really close look at the nationwide turnout for the antiwar demonstrations. We want to make the protests the biggest ones yet."

Hundreds of groups in the Twin Cities and in the state have endorsed the demonstration as have some 35 U.S. Senators and Congressmen.

The marches were called by a national antiwar convention attended by some 2,400 persons in New York City over the July 4th weekend.

Riehle points to the 70 bombings of North Vietnam in 1971 as one indication of continued U.S. presence in Asia.

"The president is withdrawing small numbers as a cover for escalating the bombings, " Riehle said.

Main speakers at the rally in St. Paul will be Lt. Governor Rudy Perpich, Rep. Donald Fraser, and Fred Stover, president of the Iowa Farmers Association.

The continued effort to mobilize mass demonstrations against the war is necessary, according to MPAC, because, as Riehle puts it, "from our perspective, the war isn't winding down, it's winding up."

strike !

Special constituency contingents will be forming, some gathering at Northrup Mall, such as the women's contingent, labor contingent, third world, gays and Vietnam veterans.

High school students will mass separately at Marshall High School on the north side of the mall at 11 A.M. and join the main body of the march.

The teachers will be joining the march outside the Minnesota Federation of Teachers headquarters at 2147 University Ave.

Some labor unions will be joining the demonstration along the route. Sixteen labor union locals have endorsed the demonstrations, "an unprecedented number" according to William Peterson, coordinator of MPAC's Labor Task Force.

The Minneapolis City Council has declared November 6 "Peace Action Day". Other cities have been similarly dubbed including Seattle, San Francisco, New York City and Atlanta, according to Riehle.

Others in the state backing the demonstration include Gov. Wendell Anderson, Sen. Walter Mondale and former Senator Eugene McCarthy.

Contributions are urgently needed to pay the cost of the nearly half million leaflets, advertisements and other costs sustained by MPAC, Riehle reported. He said that interested persons can send funds to MPAC, 100 University Ave. S.E., Minneapolis, Minnesota--55414.

L.A. POLICE AGENT REVEA

LOS ANGELES (LNS)--The story started very inconspicuously with a crank-sounding call to the Los Angeles Free Press, but now it's gone through agent provocateurs and plots to blow up the San Diego Republican Convention that would enable the president to declare martial law. Along the way there have been allusions to the Los Angeles Panthers on trial, the Marin County Courthouse escape attempt, Angela Davis and George Jackson.

Louis Tackwood is a 32-year old black man who has spent the last ten years of his life as a police agent in two sections of the Los Angeles Police Department (LAPD)--the Special Identification and Investigation Section (SII) and the Criminal Conspiracy Section (CCS)--suddenly decided to spill the beans.

He has infiltrated the Black Panther Party, the Angela Davis Defense Committee, the Soledad Brothers Defense Committee and the groups working around electing the radical slate in Berkeley's City Council elections. He claims to have put at least four men on death row by his false testimony.

The story started seeping out at the end of September. Since then the media--ranging from the Washington Post, the Los Angeles Times and the New York Times to the Los Angeles Free Press, Alternative Features Service and the Pacifica station KPFK have handled it in different ways, each deciding whether it was a bomb or merely a hot potato they were throwing around.

Tackwood himself has changed his story, popped in and out, (disappearing for two weeks, first saying he was kidnapped by the cops and later saying he just dropped out for that time). Rumors that he has pointed fingers at specific political people as agents have floated in and out. The smog seems to have spread from LA to all parts of California.

THE BEGINNING OF TACKWOOD'S CAREER

Louis Tackwood grew up in New Orleans with his grandmother and moved to LA with his father later. Graduating from high school, he graduated to the street. He got involved with a gang of car thieves--transporting hot cars from California to Mexico. Soon after that he was caught. He was given a choice of becoming an agent or going to jail for a long time. He chose joining the police, and worked in SII as undercover detective rounding up car thieves and narcotics rings. His beat was not just LA or even California, he even worked out of New Orleans, sometimes.

Tackwood first got involved with dealing with radical organizations in 1965 when he was ordered by SII to call the LAPD and tell them that there was a large arms cache at the LA Muslim Mosque. The police raided immediately, firing several rounds of ammunition into the building. No weapons were found.

A PLAN TO DESTROY THE BLACK PANTHER PARTY

Around the time that the Black Panther Party was formed up in Oakland in 1966, the LAPD was putting together its Criminal Conspiracy Section.

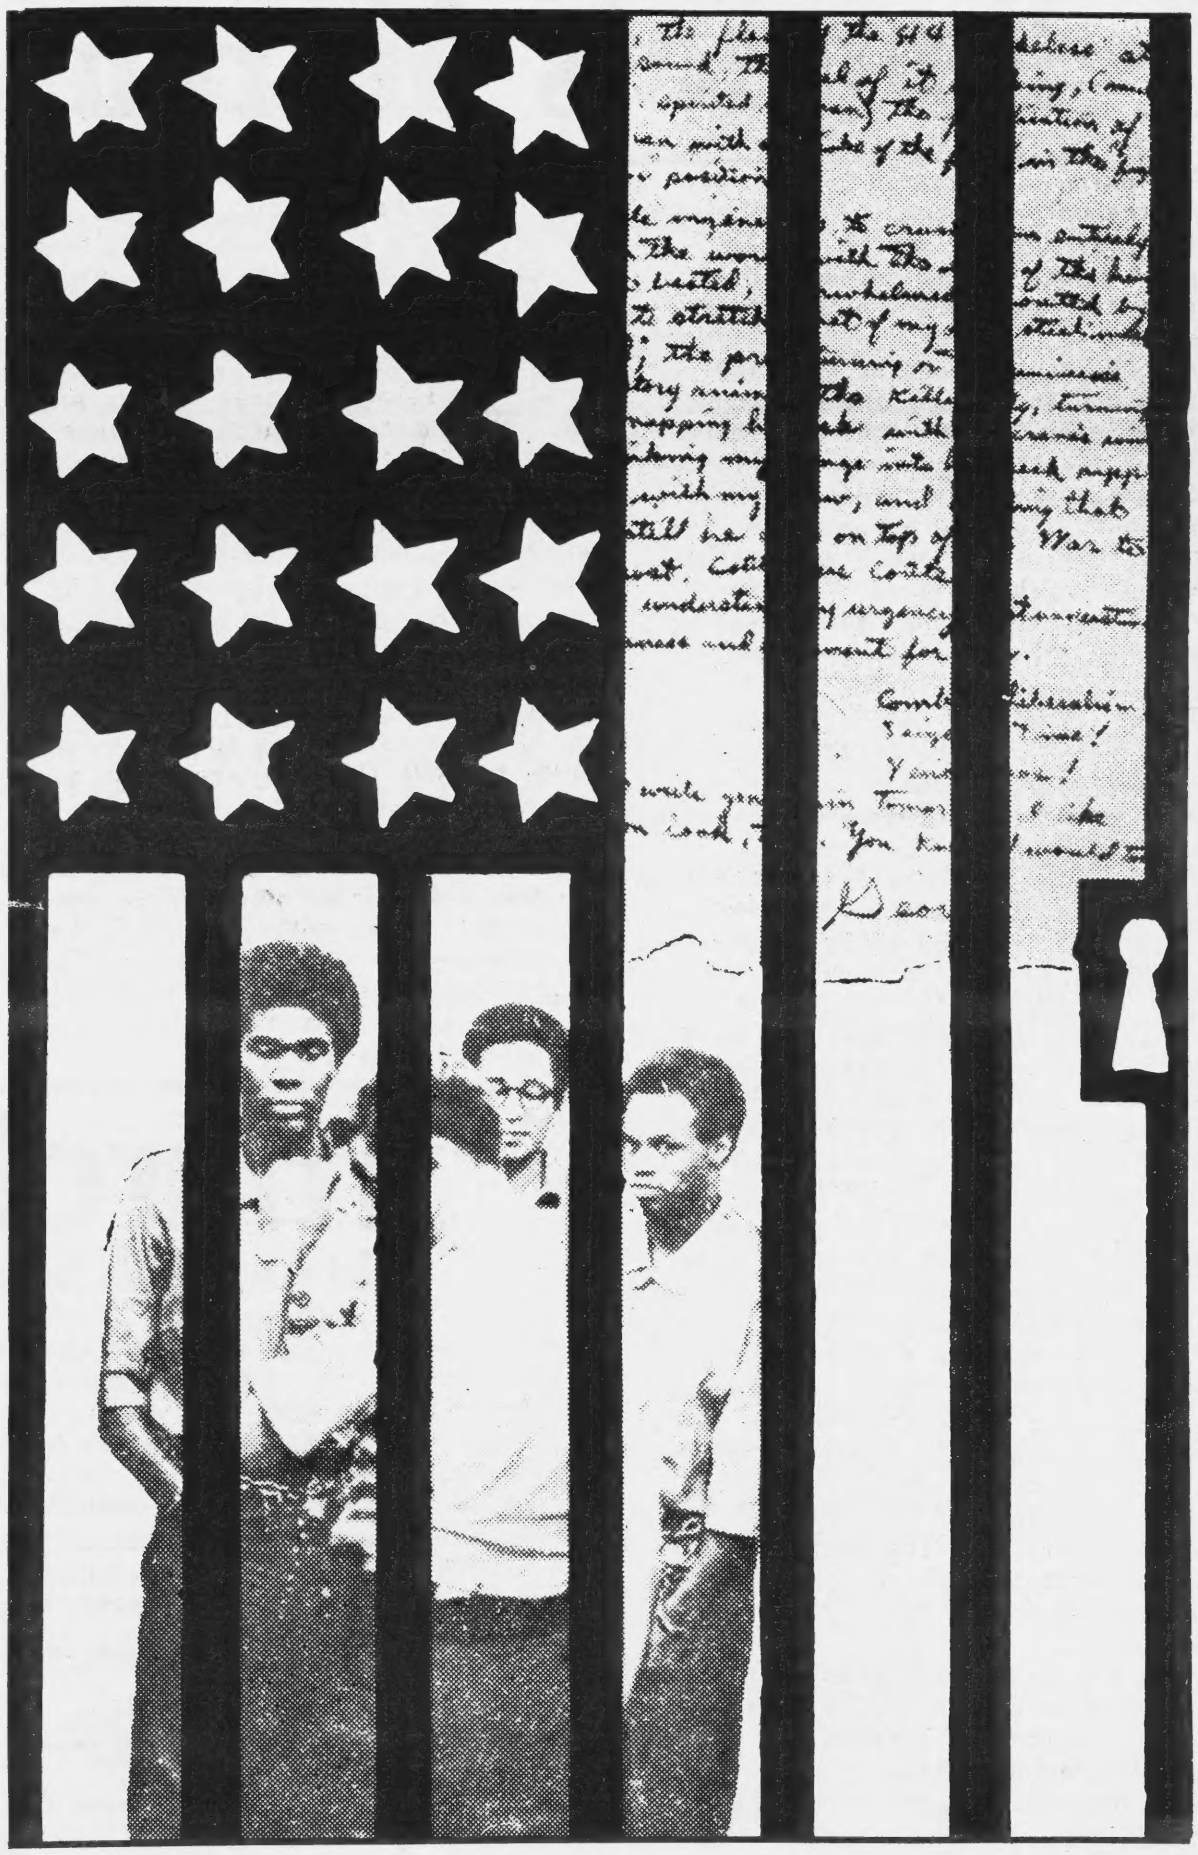
The Panthers scared policemen and politicians--not only did they seem to be attracting young blacks who hadn't been "politicized" before, but they actually brought guns into the state legislature.

By the time the Panthers came to New York, some of the founding members of the Bureau of Special Services (BOSS)--the New York equivalent of CCS. This seems to go along with Tackwood's view (and one pretty widely held) that there was a "coordinated plan that was laid out to me long ago for the complete destruction of the Black Panther Party nationwide...It was a plan to murder, intimidate, kidnap the Panthers to make it so people wouldn't join, and to break the financial back of the Party."

As the CCS has grown, its duties have been clearly defined from those of the SII. SII keeps to criminal activities and CCS keeps to radical political ones. Tackwood says there are about 200 men "like him" in the field and 14 who work in an office as heads of the section. Of those 14, two are Chicano and one is black.

CCS is not financed by the LAPD but rather by federal money so it in no way appears on the LAPD's books. Agents are given large expense accounts. They are $100 just to walk into the office and $5,000-6,000 "for other actiivites". They work closely with the FBI.

Tackwood was assigned to US, Ron Karenga's nationalist group, which, Tackwood says, was paid by the Criminal Conspiracy Section and supplied with weapons to stop the spread of "pantherism--at any cost". Tackwood claims the murder of Panthers Bunchy



LS POLICE CONSPIRACY

Carter and John Huggins on the UCLA campus by US was carried out "on the order of CCS".

Sometime after that Tackwood was assigned to infiltrate the Panthers. He supplied CCS with names of Panthers, their supporters and friends, as well as their activities. His job was to encourage the use of weapons and explosives and supply them too.

During the period he was infiltrating, Tackwood met Melvin "Cotton" Smith who is the chief state's witness against the Los Angeles Panther 13. The LA Panthers were raided on December 8, 1969 and are now being charged with attempted murder and other charges.

Some of Tackwood's most significant testimony is his revelation that Cotton had been an agent since 1967 and he didn't just turn state's evidence during the trial. It might get the Panthers off. The case could be dismissed on the grounds that Cotton heard confidential information during the pre-trial conferences between the defendants and their lawyers (he didn't turn state's evidence until the very beginning of the trial). Cotton also is the only Panther to claim that the police announced they were coming in (which makes the Panthers firing on them an attack rather than self-defense).

Tackwood was assigned to the Angela Davis and Soledad Brothers Defense Committee in 1970. While he was there he said he planted electronic listening devices, stole files and personl addressbooks. He did the same during the Berkely elections. In fact he was found with a bug on him while working with the campaign which blew his cover in the Bay area.

EXPOSING THE MARIN COUNTY ESCAPE ATTEMPT

According to Tackwood, there were supposed to be eight other participants in the Marin County escape attempt other than Jonathan Jackson. But when they got to the Courthouse and saw how well protected it was they decided to call off the action, but they didn't tell Jonathan. To this date, the LAPD has not arrested any of the eight other people. They picked one person--Angela Davis--who Tackwood doubts knew anything specific at all about the escape plan. "If Angela Davis is guilty of conspiracy, then so is the LAPD--they are more involved in conspiracy than anyone else."

Tackwood says there are many times that the CCS knows of plots and plans and who is involved in them, but doesn't arrest anyone or only arrests one person. He seems to say that is true of the supposed escape attempt by George Jackson on August 21. Tackwood claims there was some sort of escape plan--how or by whom other than George he doesn't say. He also maintains that there was a squad of people training somewhere to take care of George once he got out. He claims that CCS learned this by deciphering "coded" letters going in and out of the prison.

Tackwood also says that Sgt. Daniel Mahoney of CCS told him that "George Jackson will never live to go to trial."

Again, the people "known" to be in the squad to assist George in escaping were not arrested.

"THE FINAL SOLUTION TO ALL THE MILITANT PROBLEMS IN THE U.S."

The last major plan that Tackwood claims knowledge of is one around the Republican Convention in San Diego next summer. The LAPD was pulling together a group of local and federal agents to work on the project. They were to plant explosives in the convention hall which would go off and kill some minor notables. At the same time a few of them, as provocateurs, would help set off battles with the police.

This plan would give Nixon the excuse to invoke emergency powers, and would lead to the arrest of political activists in San Diego and all over the country. Tackwood called it the "final solution to all the militant problems in the U.S.". He said that it was awaiting approval from higher up. When asked how high up he answered, "For this to happen there has to be coordination way up there."

According to Tackwood, this plan, which was conceived about 6 months ago, was the thing which spurred him on to thinking about blowing his cover and writing a book about his experiences. He didn't want to get involved in it because "anybody involved in it would have to go too." Other times he says that the reason he quit was that CCS was trying to get his wife involved. Her brother is James Carr, a friend of George Jackson, and she has a number of contacts in the Panthers. Other people theorize that since his cover was blown in the Bay area, it was only a matter of time before it would have been blown open in Southern California as well.

TACKWOOD TELLS HIS STORY TO THE PEOPLE

In any case, some time in July, Tackwood got in touch with Michael Blake, then of the LA Free Press. Blake contacted Michael McCarthy also of the Freep. McCarthy in turn got to Marilyn Katz and Robert Duggan, two Bay area activists. These two became Tackwood's primary contact. He was doing tapes with them in preparation for his book, and was promising documents proving the San Diego plan, when he suddenly disappeared for two weeks.

What happened is still not clear. First he said he was kidnapped by the LAPD but later he claimed he was four men from the DA's office ran in with guns drawn and whisked him off to DA Joseph Busch's office. Here, Tackwood says, he was offered a deal--security, money and anonymity in exchange for a frame-up testimony of Katz and Duggan. On a mere promise, they let him go. Tackwood went to see Katz and Duggan and they arranged for a press conference.

IS TACKWOOD A "BOLSHEVIK"?

Since that time Tackwood has been giving regular press conferences and interviews. Many of his claims have had to be substantiated from sources other than himself and he has not given details. He could be charged with criminal action if he did. In some of the cases some of the details might hurt the defense.

Tackwood says he is now using the documents supposedly proving the San Diego plot as insurance to keep himself alive.

He claims that he has refused to name names of specific high-placed informers in political organizations because he felt such announcements could be destructive, and should be dealt with from the inside. He claims they have "every organization, radio station and college well-infiltrated."

Tackwood himself is more difficult to understand. One person who has had contact with him called him an entrepeneur. According to Michael Blake, "he said the men he worked for were too bloodthirsty, he had seen too many of his brothers and sisters busted in frame-ups and could take no more. He said this with anything but cold conviction, however money had hovered on the perifery from the start. He expected to get some bread out of the story of his career but he said, 'Not much, not much, just enough to make it worthwhile--you get my point.'".

The LAPD has only admitted that Tackwood did work for them but they accused him of being a "Bolshevik". One source quoted said: "I thought this story would appear in Pravda. I am surprised that Los Angeles reporters are listening to it." All Tackwood had to reply is, "If I'm a Bolshevik, then I have been one for ten years."

Whether Tackwood is 100% on the level is still not clear. What is clearer is the existence of sections of police forces like CCS or SII. As one reporter said, "each police force in the country is beginning to have its own, under another name but serving the same purpose."

THE STRUGGLE FOR IRELAND

LIBERATION NEWS SERVICE

Although the American press has devoted much space to violent conflicts in northern Ireland recently, few of us have any idea what is really going on. If we are to believe the American news media, it all comes down to a simple conflict between Catholics and Protestants--"religious tensions."

The Irish Republican Army (IRA) is often depicted as a rabble of mad bomb-throwing Catholic terrorists. The fact that northern Ireland is virtually a colony of England, where Catholic and Protestant alike are economically and politically miserable, somehow gets hopelessly buried in American news reports. Admittedly,

Catholics have been getting the shorter end of the stick since the North and South were split after a revolutionary struggle ended in 1921 with the establishment of an independent Irish state in the 26 counties of southern Ireland.

The six counties of the North (where the majority of the people are Protestant) remained under British rule. The North's Catholic population has suffered discrimination of all forms since then, while the elite among Protestants have been granted token scraps of economic and political power by the British. Essentially, Ireland--both North and South--is ruled by British corporate interests, despite the nominal independence of the South.

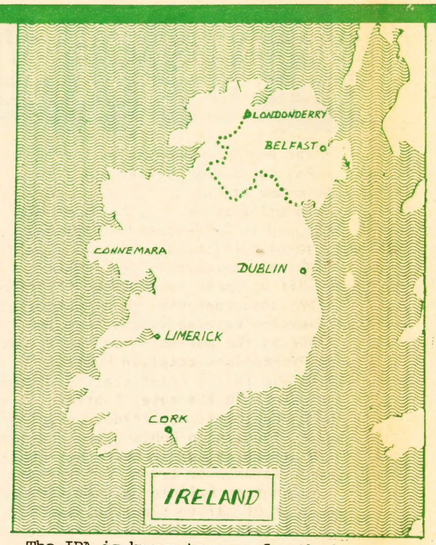
From 1962 to 1969 in northern Ireland, a large Catholic civil rights movement flourished with non-violent demonstrations until conflicts with the Orange Guard gave England an excuse to move in troops. The Orange Guard is a militant organization of Protestant right-wingers that some observers liken to the KKK in the U.S.

The IRA again became active with growing popular support. Now aiming for a united democratic socialist Ireland, the IRA considers the overthrow of the government in Dublin as necessary as the expulsion of the British from northern Ireland. Its commitment to religious freedom for both Catholics and Protestants is explicit. "God is not the issue," insists one spokesman.

Not long ago, the six counties of northern Ireland became a police state under the Special Powers Act. British troops patrol the streets. Jailings, beatings, torture, dogs, house burning, and makeshift concentration camps have all been aimed at the IRA, most of whom are still free.

Sinn Fein, the political wing of the IRA, is calling for massive civil disobedience and a general strike. Police in Dublin, the capital of southern Ireland, raided the offices of Sinn Fein and its publication, The United Irishman, in late August, heralding a clampdown on the IRA in the South as well.

The following interview was conducted by people from two radical Canadian newspapers, Art Young of Labour Challenge and Dan Evered of Guerilla, with Sean Kenny. Kenny is the North American representative of the Irish Republican Army and Joint General Secretary of Sinn Fein.



The IRA is known to many for the battles it fought for Irish independence back around 1920. How did its present day revival take place?

In 1956, the IRA was built up mainly for a campaign against British rule in northern Ireland. It was a strictly military campaign based on weapons training, the making of explosives and bombs, and what have you.

But when the 1956 campaign faded out in 1962, many of the people who were active during those years decided there was more to Irish Republicanism than just shooting British soldiers in the north. They started to read the teaching of Connally, Fintonlawler, and Lee Mellows--old-time Irish radicals. And they discovered once again that Irish Republicanism is socialist, separatist (believing in a separate nation), and non-sectarian. On these three principles we started to build the revolutionary movement.

In 1962 we started discussions at local levels and national levels--first of all, we decided not to organize for a campaign in the north. We set about planning to organize a revolution throughout the country. Some of our members didn't understand this. It was in 1965 that we really got involved in agitation on behalf of homeless people in the Dublin area.

We built up the Dublin Housing Action Committee which has, on occasions, brought thousands out on the streets. The same in Belfast where we succeeded in organizing the unemployed and homeless in Derry and Cork and Limerick.

Gradually, slowly but surely, all people throughout Ireland started to realize how deep republicanism was; that it wasn't just about the north. It was about people. Not about hills and valleys and all this dreamin stuff. We set about to organize people.

We took action in 1966 on behalf of the Connemara fishermen. The French trawlermen used to come in and fish for lobster in the Connemara area off the west coast of Ireland. The local people were very annoyed about this because their livelihoods were threatened. So a unit of the IRA destroyed a French controlled lobster boat. Because of this type of action we got tremendous support in that area, we were working on behalf of the people.

Then, down in Limmerick, an American company called E.I. opened a factory with a very large grant from the Dublin government. They decided not to employ trade union labour. The trade union movement organized inside and the management (which was American owned) sacked the trade unionists and brought in scab labour. The IRA was involved in the strike, our members were working in the factory.

After a few weeks of striking, we bottled the bosses' transport cars which were carrying the scab workers. This happened in many places throughout the twenty-six county area (the south of Ireland), and because of this, the strike was settled. The trade union movement was accepted within the factory.

This is the type of action we're involved in. It may involve burning landlord's cars in Dublin, or in Belfast, or in Derry, or in Cork for intimidating tenants or trying to raise rents. We've been building slowly. We try first of all to fight politically; if that fails we take military action.

How does the IRA wage political struggle?

We believe first of all there are two ways of fighting the establishment in Ireland. Outside of Parliament, on the street; and this is very important. It's proved successful. We also believe, at this stage, we should have elected Members of Parliament, inside, trying to crack the establishment from within.

We had an abstentionist policy--we wouldn't enter Pariament--up until January of this year. By a majority decision of delegates attending our annual convention, we decided to drop our abstentionist policy, and if our movement agrees, we will put forth selected candidates who work at a grass roots level on specific issues. They'll go into Parliament and start to agitate from the inside on the same lines as Bernadette Devlin. These are candidates of Sinn Fein, which is the political wing of the IRA. The IRA fully supports this tactic.

What's going on right now in northern Ireland?

As with the War Measures Act in Quebec, the aim of the British Government is to smash the IRA and kindred organizations by internment (imprisonment) and repressive legislation; but this has backfired on them. The result of the internment has been a tremendous outcry against repressive legislation by all sections, from the middle class down through all sections of the working class.

The snipers that you read about in the newspapers have been put across as IRA snipers and this is not so. They are UVF, the Ulster Volunteer Force, the militant wing of the Orange Order. They're very very extreme in their right-wing views and very loyal to the English Crown. They have carried out acts of aggression against both Protestant and Catholic working class areas. They were responsible for the burning of Protestant houses in the Belfast area recently. They insured that the Protestants would leave the house by sowing a seed of fear that the Catholics were coming down the street to the Protestant ghetto. The UVF agents then burned the houses.

You know, the ordinary people who aren't politically committed don't burn their houses; they feel maybe next week when things quiet down they can go back. The UVF also used trucks with IRA painted on the side to go into some of the Protestant enclaves in Catholic areas and to frighten the Protestant people and drive them out, to try to continue of widen sectarian conflict if it was there.

So the snipers are UVF. They're armed militia, and they work closely with right wing members of Parliament in the Ulster government. They've got the support of people like Bill Craig, former Minister of Home Affairs. Also the support of the present Minister of Home Affairs, John Taylor, who is a leading member of the Orange Order and who called for the internment of the IRA some months ago.

What finally touched off the recent wave of arrests?

The killing of Harry Thornton--a truck driver. He was going to work and his truck backfired. A British soldier shot him in the head. The truck was stopped at a traffic light. You know, if you're going to shoot at British soldiers you don't stop at a traffic light.

The man was completely innocent. He left a wife and eight kids. The British army issued a statement immediately saying shots were fired on the police station. Seven hours later they issued a statement saying, "It was all a mistake. Harry Thornton was shot by mistake. An enquiry will be held." It's still going on, of course.

His workmate in the truck was taken from the truck, severely beaten, and released seven hours later when they must have discovered that there was a mistake. That led to rioting.

Also, they put a sectarian group of soldiers into the Derry area, the Scottish Regiment, who intimidated the peaceful residents there and used abusive language and generally set about to force the people to react against them. What in fact was happening, we think, was that the British army, working on a political plan, was trying to force reactions all over the place, so they could pick up Irish people who are interested in Irish freedom and civil rights.

Just a day after Harry Thornton was shot dead, they began the arrests. A sudden swoop. In the internment they failed to capture the people they were after, the leadership of the IRA in northern Ireland. Many of the people they have interned are people who have never fired a shot in their lives, or don't want to fire a shot, maybe. Now they find themselves in jail.

And the British army, after the killing of Thornton, smashed up homes, intimidated families and generally went to town on the ordinary people. Twenty-eight people have been shot dead. The UVF and the British army have shot them dead. We claim that in defending the people we have taken the lives of about twenty British soldiers. They claim three or four.

There are 1600 people in jails and prison camps, many of them have been brought before the courts and sentenced for shouting such abstract things as "Up with the Republic" and Up with the IRA". They've got two or three years in jail. The British soldier's word has been taken and the ordinary people's word hasn't.

Of the 1600 people taken there's about 400 in jail without charge or trial and they can stay there indefinitely under the Special Powers Act. Many of the prisoners have been tortured, and we have received information from the internment camps where this has happened.

The Irish Times, which is the bourgeois press in Ireland, has done a tremendous job of publicizing the tortures taking place inside the concentration camps, mainly, I think, because the British army press relations with the Irish newspapers has been very poor since their recent aggression. The newspapers are trying to hit back at the public relations officers of the British Army; to for force them to be more cooperative in the future.

Is the IRA going to launch a campaign around the release of these people?

We intend to publicize their plight and to demonstrate against the internment; and in this way we feel that the British government won't be able to hold on to the prisoners that long.

There's been a tremendous outcry everywhere against the arresting of innocent people; and lately against the tortures within the prison camps. News is starting to leak out that will whollop the British government.

What is the relationship of the IRA to other left groups in Northern Ireland? For example, who are the Provisionals so often referred to in the news?

In November, 1969, a small minority split off from the IRA and Sinn Fein calling themselves the Provisionals. When the split first started it was very hard to understand whether the Provisionals had any great difference with us or not or whether it was a personality thing.

As it developed, and as our intelligence sources reported what was going on behind the scenes within the Provisionals, we found out that a very extreme right wing group of the Dublin government was financing one section of the Provisionals in the Belfast area, in an effort to destroy the revolutionary IRA. They wanted to create a military grouping in the north of Ireland that would attack British soldiers but would leave British interests alone. This came to our attention around the second month of the split.

Since that period quite large differences have developed. First of all, the Provisional people want the abolition of the present puppet government of Northern Ireland. They want in it's place direct rule from England. We denounce this. If the Stormont government is to go, we want rule by the Irish people, an all-Irish government if possible. As Pierce, the 1916 Irish revolutionary, said--12 Orangemen, 12 lunatic Irishmen, would be better ruling any part of Ireland than 12 Englishmen.

They have disagreed also with our belief that the whole of Ireland must be involved in the revolutionary struggle. There is a great danger that the Dublin government would extend it's control over the whole of Ireland if British troops are driven out. We'lll have the same system, only with different people. What we want is an all-Ireland struggle, and for this reason we have struggled in the whole of Ireland.

The Provisionals have issued several statements stating that the 26 county area of southern Ireland is not the place to organize any kind of revolution. We must fight only in the counties of the North against British troops. But in the 26 county area we find the same kind of British imperial interest controlling the natural resources. We disagree very much on that.

We also dislike the type of people who tend to support the Provisionals; people who own large tracts of land have been known to finance them and also lend their large houses for their training programs. Provisionals too, on their platforms, always state clearly that they are not communists, that they will not agree with communism, nor socialism. Their newspaper says that they believe in a socialist republic, but they have failed to spell it out.

They haven't spelt out anything clear, as far as we can see; and they have failed to involve themselves at a local level. It's one thing to have a small social economic program, it's another thing to be involved and try to make it work. They believe that nothing can happen in Ireland until the British troops get out, and we believe different. We believe that the revolution must continue to be built, even though British troops are there.

They also are rather sectarian. It's a great tragedy because they're destroying the very name of republicanism. Actions have taken place, in the north of Ireland, in the last few months, where some small businesses belonging to Protestants, have been destroyed, bottled, blown up, what have you. We would lay the b blame on most of these incidents at the door of the Provisional movement. We've had reason to come out in public statement to attack them, because by their actions they were definitely helping Britain create a situation to be able to state that it is religious conflict in Ireland when it isn't.

You say that the IRA is not sectarian. Is there much Protestan participation in the IRA?

We have between 25 and 30 percent Protestan membership in the IRA and Sinn Fein. Many of our present leaders are Protestant, many of the leaders of the IRA in the past were Protestant. The real struggle in Ireland is between the working class and the rich. I know that British intelligence have pushed a story around the world that it's a religious struggle but this is not so.

What's the next step? Are you trying to build a united front?

We're attempting to form a united front at the local level. It will be called the National Liberation Movement not the IRA, and the IRA and other organizations in it will go along their own way. What we're trying to do at the village level, town level, city level, is to gather up organizations that are at the moment flating and don't know where they're going. We try to discuss wit with them the future and the present. We try to get them involved in say, housing or jobs issues. What we're doing is from the bottom and letting that be the building of the liberation movement, which will be representative of all movements that want liberation in Ireland.

What kind of support have you already received from revolutionaries abroad? What would you like them to underline politically and concretely?

Well, we have received moral support. Revolutionaries abroad are as poor as revolutionaries in Ireland. They just about get by in building their own revolutions. What we need from revolutionaries abroad is moral support.

A & T: Would You Let a Pig in Your Blanket ?

The Alive and Trucking Theatre opened with its original play, Pig In A Blanket, October 29th in our new theatre building The Chateau on 425 13th Avenue South East. The A & T Theatre has been performing the feminist play, The Independent Female in parks throughout the summer and is continuing to do guerilla theatre on the mall and other public places around health and prison issues.

Pig In A Blanket is an exploration of how our society depends on human beings being oppressed into sex stereotypes and how these sex roles inhibit the expression of our natural sexuality. For women who are used by the society as sex objects for men's pleasure and advertising, being oppressed is an everyday death. For men striving to emulate Superman repressing emotions leads to not being able to feel. In order to discover who we are as human sexual beings we must initiate a complete restructuring of society.

We invite you to join us on either November 5, 6, 7, 12, 13, or 14. (If you like, come to all the performances.) All the performances are at 8:00 P.M.

TUPAMAROS STRIKE AGAIN

TUPAMAROS DROP THOUSANDS OF LEAFLETS OVER CAPITAL, MARKING ANNIVERSARY OF CHE'S DEATH AND PANDO OPERATION

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (LNS)--Despite increased government security precautions on the day that marks the anniversaries both of the death of Che Guevara in Bolivia in 1967 and of the capture by Uruguayan Tupamaro guerillas of the city of Pando in 1969, a tupamaro commando group seized a light plane and forced the pilot to fly over the capital city dropping thousands of leaflets.

After dropping a total of 50,000 leaflets over the capital and the nearby town of Canelones, the plane landed in an airstrip of theis city's Aero Club. The Tupamaros made their getaway in a car that was waiting for them.

Recalling the death of the "immortal hero, Major Che Guevara," the leaflets read in part:

"...In the name of those who died and those who sufferd tortures, in the name of the oppressed and of those deprived of bread and land, the struggle will continue."

--Tupamaros National Liberation Movement.

"There will be a homeland for all or a homeland for none."

The leaflets bore the emblem of the Tupamaros and were signed "commando Pando, October 8."

Women Tupamaros being placed under arrest.

Then there is the sever limitation of recreational facilities ere anyway. If a person in disinterested in what the pigs feel should be acceptable recreation for the mass mind syndrome they seek to accomplish in every man here, they're totally out of luck. There are no facilities provided for reading where a person's concentration won't be disturbed, and the reading material itself, which is provided by the institution, is racist, sexist, capitalistic, and imperialistic in nature (fortunately a public bookmobile allows us to order good books every two weeks). Movies by and large are exhibited here only if their major theme is the same. They slipped and somehow allowed the movie "No Blade of Grass" in here two weeks ago, and the establishment screamed, and is still screaming that this movie was shown here. They were up-tight because the film depicted utter loss of control by the establishment , and anarchy ruled!

Several of the brothers here practice Yoga, and here again, no place is provided for the seclusion necessary to achieve utter concentration. And they remain adamant in their refusal to develop an area for this type of activity on a regular basis. Thereby in effect saying, "we don't accept the practice of Yoga, or Zen Buddhism as being a part of our concept of the mass mind, and while the law makes us provide you with facilities once a week for Buddhist Meditation, we are not obligated to help you get into it deeper by offering you any other solitude whatever."

But this too, is only part of the dehumanizing process. They also strive to smother any deviation from what they consider the acceptable mass mind in the area of creativity. This is evidenced now in their reaction to one particular artist who has been using the painting room provided by the institution. He has had galleries exhibit his work, and nearly every painting these galleries sell of his go for large sums of money. This is no longer art as far as the institution is concerned, but an enterprise by one individual over which they have no control, so they are now attempting to close the painting room to inmates.

One last example of their attempt to stifle creativity is found in their policy on things a brother (or anyone) can write while he's in this institution. Included with this article is a copy of the manuscript permit form. It delineates exactly, with the exception of the "libelous information clause," to what extent they will try to curtail a writers field of possible material.

I say with the exception of the "libelous information clause", because when this is translated by the establishment here, it means any mention libelous or not of this institution or staff. This is an illegal manuscript - the brain police will try to give you 10 years for conspiracy to read it - really!!

COUNTY GRAND JURY!

In the Minneapolis Tribune of Friday, Oct. 29, 1971 (10B) an article appeared which told of the choosing of a county grand jury for November through February in Hennepin County. As I looked down the columns of names, addresses and occupations I became very freaked-out. I'll attempt to show why.

1. Keith E. Hartman 5247 Clinton (on the Minnehaha Parkway) coordinator for Mpls. Urban Coalition

2. Francis F. Jeffrey 2433 35th Ave. S. (on the River Pkwy.) international representative of the United Auto Workers

3. Mrs. Donald E. Collins 5053 Upton Ave. N., housewife

4. Mrs. K.S. Goldberg 17 S. 1st St., Mpls. (No occupation given)

5. Hugh J. Gallagher 2206 N.E. Roosevelt St., Mpls. mechanical engineer for Univac

6. Robert Book 6223 Westridge Rd., Edina president of Time Motor Sales, Inc.

7. Roy L. Klarens 4948 Fremont Ave. S. (on the Minnehaha Pkwy.) retired

8. Glenn S. Brooks Deephaven, pres. of Malto-Meal Co.

9. Robert J. Hanley 4825 Ewing Ave. Mpls., vice-pres. , Service Ideas, Inc.

10. William D. MacMillan 3010 Winnetka Ave. N. Crystal, pres. Waycross Inc.

11. Elwood H. McVeety 5616 Kellogg Pl. Edina of the Elwood H. McVeety Inc.

12. Mrs. Donald F. Watson 3915 Ottawa Ave. S. St Louis Park housewife

13. Curtis C. Ewing 1700 Emerson Ave. S. Post Office employee

14. Gordon Rogers 535 River Pkwy. Champlin pres. Durgin & Son, Inc.

15. Roland D. Rasmussen 4701 Emerson Ave. S. Mpls. of Rasmussen Import Co.

16. Ralph J. Brix 5036 Norman Dr. Minnetonka, manager of Sears

17. Todd C. Fruen 13343 Wyola Rd., Minnetonka, sec.-treas. of Glenwood-Inglewood Co.

18. Anthony A. Gasser 3300 Hazelwood Rd. Wayzata, security salesman for Smith-Barney and Co.

19. Jay W. Tyson 1724 James Ave. N. architect

20. Kenneth J. Holmquist 6132 11th Ave. S. Mpls. administrator Bethesda Hospital

21. Virgil M. Mylan Smithtown Bay Excelsior, pres. Cooperative Church Supply Co.

22. Donald J. Thimsen 3020 Atwood Dr. Minnetonka, chemical engineer, General Mills.

23. Odd K. Rovick 6101 Halifax Ave. S. Edina a telephone company employee

Of the 23 people, 6 are presidents or vice-presidents of corporations, 2 own their own businesses, one is a secretary and treasurer of Glenwood-Inglewood Co., one works for General Mills and one for Univac. There are a total of three women out of the 23. 12 out of 23 are not from Minneapolis. 8 out of the 11 from Mpls. are from high or relatively high income areas of Mpls. (like the parkways).

How can these people make decisions on who should or should not be indicted of state crimes if they are not in contact with those people and their cultural situations which make up the majority of state indictments?

I wonder what the average age of those 23 is. I have a good idea the difference in the average age of the indictors and indictees is about twenty years and the income difference about 10-15 thousand (and up) to maybe even 100 thousand per year for some. How can even the most pretentious person believe that such an extreme difference between the grand jury and the "criminals" could result in a fair and equitable legal system? If there is such a person, I would ask him to go to the District Court in Mpls. and see just who are your "criminals"; you may be surprised to see most of the people are 18 to 28 and poor and the older ones above 28 are just about all Indian or Black or poor White.

You don't see your George or Bruce Daytons in court. You won't see your Stephen Keatings or Nelson Rockefellers in court. It's not that they don't break the law, 12% of the revolving charge accounts at Daytons is illegal. But Bruce B. Dayton is only the chairman of the board of Dayton-Hudson Corp. and Kenneth N. Dayton is only the president and Donald Dayton is only a member on the board of directors. There are only 5 Daytons on the board, surely they aren't the cause of such illegal interest rates, are they? And the fact that the Dayton's own 73% of the stock means nothing, also. And the coincidence that the transfer agents and registrars for that stock is N.W. National Bank of Mpls, Chase Manhattan Bank of N.Y.C. and the First National Bank of N.Y.C, three of the largest banks in the world, two of which are controlled by Rockefeller (N.W. Nat'l. and Chase Manhattan) and one of which (N.W.) Donald C. Dayton is a board member in (along with James Binger of Honeywell fame) is just a coincidence--no possible intention to steal from the people who are forced to work in this economic situation to survive.

I wonder if Nelson Rockefeller could ever spend a year in Attica, being treated by the guards as a prisoner would be? I wonder if he knows what the conditions in Attica are like? I wonder if a man who has strong influence over hundreds of billions of dollars per year has the capability to feel love for a person who has to steal to eat? Can the great white god feel anything, he being the man who ordered the death of those prisoners and guards at Attica and also recommended more arms aid to Latin American military juntas to protect themselves against "traitors"?

Maybe the reason you don't find Dayton or Rocky in jail is because the corporate owners and presidents are on the grand juries in this kountry.

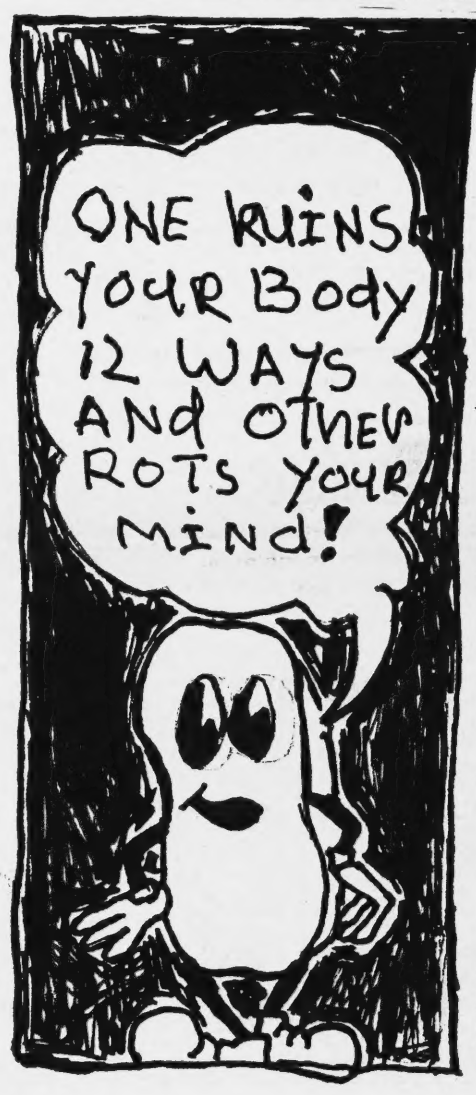
DID YOU KNOW THAT RATS WON'T EAT WHITE FLOUR

HI, KIDS, LARKY LOAF HERE! TO WARN YOU ABOUT WHITE BREAD. THESE ARE TWO LEADING BRANDS OF WHITE BLEACHED BREAD!
BLUNDER BREAD
TASTES



There is some confusion, in the public mind, about two terms often advertised. One is Unbleached Flour. This is simply white flour, without the chemical bleach. In no sense is unbleached flour a wholegrain because, like any other white flour, it does not contain the natural vitamins and other nutritional elements always present in stoneground wholegrains.

Labels are sometimes misleading on whole wheat products. Federal law requires that all ingredients must be listed. Thus under the title Wholegrain Bread you can read in very fine print that the ingredients are wholegrain wheat flour and white flour. The proportions are never given. They could be one barrel of white flour and one teaspoon of wholegrain flour and be within the law. That's like the classic recipe for Rabbit-Elephant Stew: one rabbit and one elephant.

Some confusion also arises due to the several names given the wholegrain wheat product. In America, it is called Graham flour and "wholewheat" flour. I prefer the term wholegrain flour to distinguish from that now prostituted word wholewheat, which in America has no more meaning whatsoever due to the shrewd manipulation of the English language by the millers and bakers or their advertising agents. For wholewheat is no longer a word meaning all of the wheat berry. You can buy "wholewheat" bread and "wholewheat" flour but you are in no sense getting all of the kernel of wheat. The millers and bakers get around the federal law under which manufacturers are supposed to attach true names descriptive of their products by claiming that their product is wholewheat, or, in their language, all wheat...that is to say, no barley, no corn, no oats. But in no sense is it all of the wheat.

It is rather appalling to realize how easily the milling trade has succeeded these many years keeping the facts from the public. We only have to look in the Encyclopedia Britannica, to obtain bonafide evidence. The erudite and technical account of milling in that compendium was written by an English miller, and it is revealing to see how nonchalantly he treats of the process by which the germ was eliminated. He says,"... in roller milling the germ was easily separated from the rest of the berry and it was readily sifted from the stock. The germ contains a good deal of fatty matter which, if allowed to remain, would not increase the keeping qualities of the flour."

That such a standardized reference should allow truth to be so distorted is amazing enough, were it not for the more sinister fact that the milling trade has now reached the apotheosis of their craft when they believe their own lies and perpetuate them with no moral guilt whatever.

But it might be interesting to ask what this refined white flour that keeps better is doing to our stomachs. No one has summed it up more succinctly than Geoffrey Bowles in that delightful magazine the British Countryman, when he declared: "Much of our national illness is caused by crazes for food that is (1) white, (2) refined and (3) keepable. All three crazes are exemplified in white flour. The best food chemists are the earth and sun, which produce the wholewheat that the steel rollers of the white flour millers spoil. White flour makes white faces...food is stuff to be eaten fresh, not to be 'kept' as if it were an heirloom... wholemeal flour naturally does not 'keep' because the germ in it is alive. Germless wheat flour 'keeps' because it is dead, because it is as dead as Portland cement powder, all its original goodness having been sifted out. Let them 'keep' their flour who have no care to keep their health."

Thanx very much to Mildred Ellen Orton who wrote the book, Cooking With Wholegrains way back in 1951.The above article was taken from this book.
